TAKE CHICKENS BY THE HUNDRED

Old Chickens and Young Ones, Fancy Chickens and Common Ones. Taken by Gang Operating in Eastern Section of the County.

Chickens, the ordinary garden variety and some of more distinguished ancestry, have been stolen, literally by the hundreds, from the chicken houses of York Springs residents during the past few nights and as a result poultry fanciers in that thriving community have converted their homes into veritable arsenals in anticipation of further visits from the intruders.

Michael Bower was one of the heaviest losers. More than one hundred chickens, including both young and old ones, were removed from his coops one night this week, the haul including almost all of his poultry. Clinton LaRue has lost almost as many and neither one has any definite clue to the thief.

At the home of Gilbert Fair, two separate hauls were made, the marauder calling one night to remove all the old chickens and then having sufficient effrontery to return the following night and take away all the young chicks.

Charles W. Gardner is one of the heaviest losers, not in numbers but in the variety of birds stolen. Mr. Gardner recently bought some fine chickens, expecting to exhibit them at the poultry show at Biglerville next winter. Every one of them was taken and Mr. Gardner is out chickens, money and blue ribbons.

Postmaster Emmert is nursing a bruised nose and face due to a kick from a shot gun which he received on Tuesday night when he heard some peculiar noises in his chicken yard. Mr. Emmert heard some of his chickens squawking about midnight and fired his gun to scare off supposed thieves. There was evidence next morning that some person had taken a hurried departure from his chicken house.

Hardware dealers in the town are selling nearly as much ammunition now as in hunting season for the majority of the farmers have armed themselves.

The thieves have not confined their operations alone to the town but have visited a number of nearby farms. Suspicion rests on supposed guilty parties but as yet sufficient evidence has not been secured to warrant an arrest.

DRAINED BY A RUNAWAY HORSE

Animal Takes Fright at Trolley Car. Pulls out Driver and then Runs Away. Daughter Stays in Carriage and is Unhurt.

Thrown from a carriage when his horse took fright at a trolley car, J. V. Eyler, of near Harney, had a narrow escape from serious injury at Rouzerville on Wednesday. His daughter stayed in the vehicle and escaped harm.

Mr. Eyler and his daughter had just reached the foot of the long hill leading from Monterey into the Franklin County village. They were riding in a single seated carriage and the horse took fright when a trolley car, bound from Waynesboro for Pen Mar, hove into sight around a sharp curve.

The horse swerved sharply, in the direction of the car and then made a short turn in the opposite direction, snapping off a shaft. Mr. Eyler was pulled out over the dashboard. He clung to the lines and was dragged along the road for a good distance finally letting go, after receiving a number of cuts and bruises.

With one shaft still attached to the buggy, the horse started up the mountain, with Miss Eyler in the vehicle. Because of the steep grade and weakened condition of the remaining shaft, the horse soon freed itself. It was caught later by some men on the mountain.

Miss Eyler was not hurt in the least though she was considerably shaken up and thoroughly frightened.

After getting the horse back from the mountain and some repairs to the carriage the father and his daughter were able to proceed on their way.

WEDDED IN FOREST

Romantic Marriage of Young Couple by Moonlight.

Under the darkening boughs of a pine, close by a splashing mountain cascade, with a pale new moon shedding, through a rift in the clouds, a faint sheen of silvery light on picturesque rocks and lofty crests, was the setting for the nuptials of a young Waynesboro couple Monday evening.

With the only witness the mother of the bridegroom, and the officiating minister the Rev. Dr. J. Lower Grimm, pastor of the First United Brethren Church, Waynesboro, practically invisible in the deep shadows of the big tree, romantic, indeed, was the marriage of Harry A. Niedentohl, son of Professor H. A. Niedentohl, and Miss Elizabeth I. Oelssier, both of Waynesboro. The unique circumstances surrounding the marriage was the result of a desire to have the knot tied without delay. When the young couple went to Dr. Grimm with a Maryland license he explained that it would be necessary to perform the ceremony in that State—hence the trip across the Mason and Dixon Line.

MANY ENJOYED UNION PICNIC

Games, Races and Band Concert are the Big Features of Gettysburg's Annual Sunday School Outing.

Gettysburg had its best Sunday School picnic for many years on Wednesday afternoon and evening when a crowd rivaling that of "Opening Day" gathered for the annual outing. Business and threatening skies kept the crowd small in the afternoon but the evening saw hundreds at the popular resort.

Only one accident occurred to mar the day. Mrs. Amos Weikert was struck on the chest by a swiftly moving base ball from the bat of one of the players in the Presbyterian-Reformed game. She was painfully hurt and after preliminary attention, she was removed to her home. It is not thought that the injury is of a serious character.

The program of attractions provided by the committee kept every one busy all evening. Prof. Leo McDonald had out the Citizens' Band for their first public concert since he assumed leadership. They played for several hours to the great pleasure of the large crowd.

The keenly contested game of basketball between the Red Birds and the Jenny Wrens was again the occasion for much excitement. The victors of Opening Day were the vanquished this time, the Red Birds taking away the game by the score of 3 to 1.

Ice cream was the prize offered the victors in the various dashes. Five fifty yard races were run and the winners were Keith Berger, Joseph Williams, Harry Pittenturf, Nellie Pittenturf, and Catherine Bickle, of Washington.

An interesting game of base ball in the evening resulted Gettysburg Furniture Factory 4, Reaser Furniture Factory 0.

In the afternoon the Reformed continued their winning streak in the Sunday School League by defeating the Presbyterians 8 to 7. Bringman pitched for the leaders and Jones for the Presbyterians. Eight runs were batted off his delivery in the last two innings.

Fire that started at 8:15 Tuesday night in Martinsburg, destroyed the livery and boarding stable of H. E. Owen. Forty horses, belonging to Mr. Owen, the express companies and Contractor Ferrara, were burned to death. All the vehicles in this stable were also burned.

The fire spread to the hotel stables, operated as a livery stable by Henry Heller. All the horses there were saved, but all the vehicles and other contents were burned. The summer kitchen of the hotel was burned.

Among the horses burned were two old fire horses that had served in St. Louis, at the exposition, and had recently arrived in Martinsburg. They were stored in this stable because of alterations being made at the fire house.

EUROPEAN CONFLICT NOW SEEMS SURE

Russians Declare
For War.

ARE MOBILIZING TROOPS

Czar is Determined to Support Servia.

AUSTRIANS SHELL BELGRADE

Bridge Near the Servian Capital is Blown Up.

London, July 30.—Belgrade, the Servian capital on the Danube, was bombarded by the Austrians and the bridge across the river Save is said to have been blown up.

Russia is reported to have ordered the mobilization of more than 1,200,000 troops.

As the result of the reported Russian mobilization an important official council was held in Berlin. No orders for a German mobilization, apparently, have yet been issued.

Thus the peace of all Europe now lies in the hands of the kaiser and the czar.

The report of the Belgrade bombardment was received in St. Petersburg from Belgrade and means that the Austro-Servian war is on in full force.

Paris at the same time received a report that Russia was assured by Austria that she did not intend to occupy Belgrade.

London heard a rumor that Russia had informed Austria in a manner having the semblance of an ultimatum that the czar would take Servia's part, but the rumor was without confirmation.

The reports that the Russian war office had ordered partial mobilization in the southern and southwestern districts came to London from St. Petersburg.

This is fraught with mighty significance, for it had been declared in Berlin that orders even for partial mobilization in Russia would be followed by German mobilization and immediate war. Then the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente would be irrevocably embroiled and the dreaded general conflict would be on.

While all Europe looked to Berlin and St. Petersburg to see what was in store, the kaiser and the czar exchanged personal messages. These notes dealing with the crisis crossed one another between the capitals. It is believed both were aimed at the preservation of peace.

Austria Masses 300,000 Troops.

Though hostilities are on between Austria-Hungary and Servia and there are unconfirmed rumors of fighting, the actual state of the military movements is cloaked by the most rigid censorship Europe ever has known. It is known, however, that Austria has massed 300,000 men on the Servian border.

It is rumored that the actual invasion of Servia has begun at several points and that there has been fighting on the river Drina, the boundary between Servia and Herzegovina.

A report was circulated that the German minister to Servia had been assassinated, but it also was reported that he had left Belgrade for Nish, the temporary capital.

The British first fleet sailed from Portland under secret orders, probably for the North sea. Italy also is concentrating her warships.

Revolutionists in Warsaw, Russian Poland, were reported to have blown up many magazines of forts there and to have hurled bombs, killing or injuring many. The citadel was reported destroyed.

Belgium ordered mobilization of three classes of reservists.

All Servians in Austria-Hungary liable for military service are being held as prisoners of war.

Premier Asquith in the British house of commons admitted the crisis was of the "most extreme gravity."

Great Britain, while abstaining from anything which would be provocative of alarm on the part of Austria and her friends, is quietly making preparations for any contingency that may bring her within the scope of the Continental troubles.

The feeling in Paris was extremely pessimistic and the "big war" was predicted within ten days. Berlin was lit less gloomy. In both cities anti-war demonstrations occurred.

SIR EDWARD GREY.

Peace Advocate Who Tried to Avert War in Europe.

Out of the dark way clouds which overhang all Europe looms the figure of Sir Edward Grey, British secretary of foreign affairs. This man has done more for the preservation of peace in Europe than any other living man perhaps. He took a prominent part in the settlement of the Balkan crisis and also aided materially in the Moroccan dispute, which came near disrupting the cordiality existing between the powers. Now he is endeavoring to mediate the dispute between Austria, Servia and other powers with excellent prospects of success. He shares with the kaiser the distinction of being the real man of the hour in the existing condition.

was wounded. The officials of both banks made protests to the German legation.

The Servians did not reply to the fire. Part of the bridge across the Save from Belgrade to Semlin was destroyed and is now in such a condition that it cannot be used. Artillery fighting is going on at Vuchitza, near Belgrade.

RUSSIAN RULER TAKES STAND

Czar is Determined to Support Servia.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—In Russian eyes the die is cast. Only a political miracle can now avert war.

Russia does not swerve from her determination to support Servia, and partial mobilization has already been ordered. There is every indication that the whole vast military machinery of Russia will soon be set in motion.

An imperial manifesto is awaited. Should Emperor Nicholas become generalissimo of the forces, as it is understood he will, an immense wave of enthusiasm will sweep over Russia.

The political parties have all sunk their differences. The general attitude is not "jingoistic," but one of resolute confidence in the justice of the country's cause and readiness to make all sacrifices.

The proposal attributed to Austria to discuss terms when Belgrade has been occupied is regarded as impossible. It is pointed out that before the opening of hostilities Russia proposed to Austria a direct exchange of views, which Austria rejected.

The foregoing St. Petersburg dispatch was passed by the censor without revision—a fact which is considered highly significant.

Partial mobilization of the Russian troops in the southern and southwestern districts was ordered by the Russian war office.

The present mobilization order affects only the Russian frontier contiguous to Austria and not the German frontier. It is confined to the military districts of Kiev, Odessa, Moscow and Kazan. The peace footing of each of these districts is four army corps, each numbering 40,000 men, or a total of 160,000 men. The command to mobilize doubles this total, so that 320,000 men are affected by the order of mobilization.

Peace Body to Shun Vienna.

Brussels, Belgium, July 30.—The International Peace association, at the request of the American delegates now here, has called a meeting for next Friday. As a protest against the war like action of Austria, the association has decided to change the meeting place of the Universal Peace Congress in September from Vienna to Bern.

MEXICO FACTIONS AGREE ON PEACE

Carranza and Carvajal Said to Have Reached Basis.

TO WORK OUT DETAILS

Amnesty Will Be Granted to All Except Those Concerned in Overthrow of Madero.

Washington, July 30.—General Carranza and Provisional President Carvajal have agreed on a basis for the arrangement of peace in Mexico, according to a message received here by Jose Castellot, personal representative of Carvajal.

Mr. Castellot showed Secretary of State Bryan his latest advice from Mexico City, which stated that General Villar and Justice Allende, Carvajal's two delegates to Carranza, have been instructed to carry out in detail the general basis of peace "already agreed upon."

That was interpreted by Mr. Castellot to mean that through private channels and through Reginaldo Cepeda, advance delegates of the Carvajal government now with General Carranza, a definite understanding has been reached for a peaceful transfer of the government at Mexico City to the Constitutionalists.

With respect to amnesty and guarantees, General Carranza, it is understood, will promise immunity to all except those directly responsible for the overthrow of Madero. Practically all those said to be guilty have fled from Mexico, and that exception will not be opposed by the Carvajal government.

It is expected that within a few days the Carvajal delegation will have worked out the details of an agreement. Diplomats expect that one of the first questions will be on recognizing the protocols signed at Niagara Falls between the United States and the Huerta government. Approval of those by the Constitutionalists probably would mean recognition by the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

An agreement by which Zapata's forces are to co-operate with the Constitutionalists in restoring peace throughout Mexico has been arranged by delegates at Vera Cruz and now requires only the signatures of Carranza and Zapata before being made public.

A definite idea of General Villa's intentions is expected soon.

Carranza to Protect Life.

Ciudad Victoria, Mexico, July 30.—General Carranza, "first chief" of the Constitutionalists, issued a proclamation pledging to protect the lives and property of foreigners in Mexico City when the government surrenders to the revolutionists.

Referring to those Mexicans who rebelled against President Madero, the proclamation says they will be punished "in conformity with the law."

General Carranza has been notified by his agent in London that a syndicate of foreign bankers has offered to make the new government a large loan.

WILSON A CALM SPECTATOR

Assured European War Will Not Seriously Affect the United States.

Washington, July 30.—President Wilson kept closely informed of the war situation in Europe through reports from the American diplomats abroad, but there was no change in the attitude of mere observation.

Secretary Redfield indicated to the White House that he had no fear that a war in Europe would have any serious effect on conditions in the United States.

It was the belief of officials close to the president that although prices of foodstuffs might go up in this country, general business conditions resulting from the demand for American products abroad would offset it.

SAVES HER SISTER
FROM SNAKE'S COILS

Was Being Choked to Death by a Black-racer.

Ohio, Pa., July 30.—Awakened by something passing over her arm, Miss Hazel Joseph, of Jim Run, near here, jumped up in bed and discovered a monster black racer coiled around the neck of her younger sister, Lorette.

The girl, awakened by the squeezing, was fighting for her life, but the big reptile was slowly choking her to death. So tight were the coils about the girl's neck that she could not speak.

She was gradually growing weaker, when the elder sister, not waiting to call for help, caught up a pair of long shears from a dresser, and with a strong stroke succeeded in cutting the snake in two. She then quickly released her sister and called for help.

After working for some time over the injured girl she was revived and will recover. The snake was a monster racer more than seven feet long. No one knew how it made its way into the house.

The transportation companies have offered rewards aggregating $500 for the capture of the bandits.

WAR FEVER GRIPS LITTLE SERBIA ALL EUROPE AS FLAUNTS AUSTRIA

Looming Up of the Worst Conflict in History Appals Civilized World.

Causes and Possibilities. How Germany and Russia Are Involved.

WITH the break between Austria and Serbia the civilized world was appalled at the prospect of a bloodier war than ever darkened history.

Serbia's dream of centuries for a port on the Adriatic was about to be accomplished in the recent Balkan war, when Austria-Hungary shattered it and also forced the Montenegrins to retire from Scutari.

This intensified the hatred for Austria that has been in the hearts of the Serbians for six hundred years and which was actively expressed in the recent assassination of Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and his wife. The assassination was the match to the magazine.

Then came Austria's ultimatum. Serbia answered the Austrian ultimatum by the acceptance of all conditions imposed therein save one. She agreed to dissolve the Pan-Serb societies accused of plotting against the Austrian armies of the triple entente number 2,264,500 in times of peace and the gigantic number of 10,230,000 in times of war. The same three countries have a combined force of 8,200,000 unorganized men of military age who could be drawn on in case of emergency. This would make the stupendous number of men available for actual service in the triple entente, exclusive of those of Serbia, nearly 20,000,000.

The totals of the three countries composing the triple alliance—Austria, Germany and Italy—are almost as staggering. The total war footing of the combination is 8,400,000; the peace strength, 1,510,000. The same countries have an unorganized force of men of military strength which numbers 5,200,000, or about 14,600,000 men, who could in a pinch be called on for service.

Where it would all end and the wisest wisecracker could never say, and the industrial and economic havoc such a war would wreak would probably set the world back a half century at least.

army. She agreed to publish an apology in the official journal, agreed to issue an army order condemning the greater Serbian agitation and agreed to dismiss all Serbian officers and officials whose complicity in the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife was proved.

On one point only did she make reservation, namely—that the measures required of her should be such as international law sanctions, and that she be not compelled to allow Austrian officials to enter Serbian territory and there try Serbian subjects. She asked that this request be submitted to The Hague tribunal and that more time be granted for that end. Thus on nine out of ten points Austria had immediate compliance, and on the tenth she was requested to allow a reference to The Hague court, which might find in her favor if her case were good.

This reply was considered insufficient by Austria, and the Austrian minister at Belgrade left the Serbian capital.

Biggest War in History.

Greater than all the armies ever before assembled will be those called on in case the countries which are parties to the triple alliance and the triple entente are finally brought into the war between Austria and Serbia. If the entire strength of the nations involved were placed in the field—or if a fair proportion of them were called out—they would make the armies of past conflicts seem small by comparison.

Serbia—one of the little nations of the world—has not much of an army. Latest figures, prepared this year, show that her army in time of peace numbers 32,000 men. Her war strength is 240,000, and in addition to this force she has an unorganized body of men who, in case of dire necessity, could be called on for service, numbering 60,000 more. This body of men would be but a speck compared with the tremendous armies which could be called upon to shoulder arms if Russia, France and Great Britain, composing the triple entente, took up the cause of Serbia.

Russia's Great Power.

Russia leads all the big countries mentioned both in peace strength and war footing, although her war footing is but 500,000 in excess of that of Germany. She has 1,290,000 men in times of peace and 5,500,000 on a war footing. France has 720,000 for a peace guard and 4,000,000 on a war footing. Great Britain has a peace footing of 254,500 and a war footing of 730,000. The total

Pass On.

"I am still looking for an honest man," announced Diogenes. "I can give you no help," declared the stranger. "Who are you?" "I'm an income-tax collector."

its expense would run into the billions, almost beyond computation. Every country in Europe which practices conscription contains additional millions of men, young and old, who are regarded as possible food for the cannon. Within a month between six and twelve millions of men might be engaged.

May Involve Balkan States.

Three of the Balkan states which might possibly become involved in the imbroglio are Roumania, Bulgaria and Greece. The combined peace footing of these countries is 180,500; the war footing, 1,030,000. In war footing Roumania leads the three with 500,000. Bulgaria comes next and Greece last.

Aeroplanes would figure in the conflict. Austria has 150, Italy 200, Germany 350, total 700; Great Britain has 130, France 750 and Russia 380, total 1,260.

Possible Outcome.

Russia has proclaimed herself the protector of Serbia and of Roumania. By conquering Serbia Austria and her ally, Germany, would reach the Aegean sea and thus hamper the southern Russian ports and commerce. Roumania is Russia's buffer state.

If Russia aids Serbia—and already her army is mobilizing—this would call upon Germany and Italy as parties to the triple alliance to send their armies and navies against Russia in the aid of their ally, Austria-Hungary.

Then as members of the triple entente between Russia, France and England France and England might be compelled to aid Russia.

Thus there would be of the six great powers of Europe Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy on one side and Russia, France and England on the other.

France, at least its army, is apparently eager for the contest, seeking to regain lost Alsace and Lorraine and to avenge the war of 1870-1.

Bulgaria may be expected to aid the dual monarchy to avenge the wrongs which she believed she suffered just after the war against Turkey, when Serbia attacked her and forced her to surrender most of what her army had won. Turkey is counted upon to aid Austria-Hungary, while Greece, to prevent her annihilation by the southward progress of Austria, will also support Serbia and the pan-Slavists.

While a comparison of the numbers in the Austro-Hungarian and Serbian armies makes war between them seem absurd, Serbia believes that her army, well drilled, thoroughly disciplined and hardened by two recent wars, will be a match for the vastly greater Austro-Hungarian army, which is untrained in actual service.

Serbia also counts on the rising tide of pan-Slavism within the dual monarchy. And, outside of the active aid of Russia, the little kingdom is relying much on the reported indigence of the Austro-Hungarian treasury.

Easier to Defend.

Kragujevatz, to which King Peter has moved his court from Belgrade, is about fifty miles due south of Semendria, on the Danube, and about fifty-five miles south-southeast of Belgrade. It lies on a branch spur of railroad about fifteen miles from the main line to Saloniki and Constantinople, and is well adapted for defense. It is the third town in size in the old kingdom of Serbia, with about 20,000 people. Its only superiors are Belgrade and Nisch.

The town was the first capital of the principality of Serbia, after its partial liberation from the Turks.

It has always been realized that its isolated position made Belgrade of less value as the seat of government, and it is believed that ever since the victories in 1912 and 1913 the Serbian government has planned to move its headquarters to some town nearer the center of the kingdom.

Tragedy Made Peter King.

King Peter, under whose rule Serbia has advanced to a strong position in southeastern Europe, came to the throne as the result of a crime that shocked the world.

Eleven years ago King Alexander of Serbia and Queen Draga were assassinated in their palace at Belgrade. Half an hour after midnight on June 10, 1903, forty army officers entered the palace, burst into the apartments of the king and queen and killed them. Details of the tragedy vary, but the best authenticated is that the couple died in each other's arms. The same night several ministers were slain by the plotters. The total number of victims of the conspiracy is said to have been fifty-four.

At the time of the tragedy King Peter was in Geneva, living a secluded life and apparently taking little interest in the politics of his native land. Ever since the terrible night of the assassinations he has denied that he had any foreknowledge of them. Nevertheless suspicion has continued, justly or unjustly, to rest upon him, and it was some years after his accession to the throne before Great Britain and other powers recognized him formally as king of Serbia.

IF COW "BALKS" MILK HER.

Resourceful Young Man Tries It and Breaks Blockade.

The best way to get rid of an obstinate cow that plants herself across the highway and will not permit an automobile to pass is to stop and milk the cow, according to Carroll Horton of Okmulgee, Okla., who is visiting his father, ex-Supreme Court Justice Horton, at Ithaca, N. Y.

Young Horton was a member of an automobile party speeding toward Newfield when the road was blocked near that village by a large Jersey cow which had sprawled across the road. The cow refused to heed either horn or claxonette, and not wishing to run into the ditch the automobile party stopped.

All efforts to get the Jersey out of the way failed until Horton alighted, called "Here bossy, here bossy," took off his Panama hat and proceeded to milk the cow. When he had finished the milking the cow agreeably walked off the road and the party proceeded with a bountiful supply of milk.

FIRST SHIPS AT PANAMA.

Canal Is to Be Open For Commerce Aug. 15.

The Panama canal will be opened for commerce to all ships needing not more than thirty feet of water on and after Aug. 15. A majority of the merchant vessels that will use the canal do not draw more than thirty feet.

On that day Governor Goethals will inaugurate the opening of the canal to regular commercial service by sending through the entire length of the canal one of the ships of the Panama Railroad company, which is owned by the United States.

There will be no ceremonies incident to this opening. Newspaper representatives will be permitted to be aboard the first vessel passing through, and a list of invited guests will be announced later.

The official opening of the canal will take place in March, 1915.

TOASTS OF A CENTURY AGO.

Those at Peace Celebration to Be Same as at Ghent Treaty Banquet.

Plans for the peace centennial have been made by the American peace committee. A feature of the celebration which has been arranged for will be a banquet at Ghent, Belgium, on Jan. 6 of next year, at which there will be the same menu, the same toasts as at the banquet 100 years before, with which the signing of the treaty of Ghent, diplomatically terminating the war of 1812, was celebrated. The British celebration will begin next Christmas eve with church services throughout the United Kingdom and will continue for some weeks.

The first formal observance in the United States will take place Feb. 14, 1915, when churches throughout the country will observe peace centenary Sunday. Along the Canadian border the celebrations will take place during the summer of 1915.

The Simple Life.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Creamed Eggs on Rice.
Stuffed Green Peppers.
Bran Bread and Butter.
Grated Pineapple.
Tea or Milk.

THERE is a growing fondness for this favorite Italian vegetable, the green pepper. No matter with what food it is combined, the flavor of the pepper will predominate.

Stuffed With Vegetables.

Peppers With Tomatoes.—Cut the tops from sweet green peppers, remove the white membrane and seeds and cover the peppers with boiling water. Boil them for several minutes, then take from the stove and allow them to get cold. Make a filling of bread-crumbs and chopped tomato pulp from which all the juice has been pressed, and season with salt and pepper. Fill the peppers first draining them with this mixture, set them close together in a baking pan, pour a little stock about them or pour around them a little hot water, and cook until tender, but not broken. Put upon a dish, make a thick tomato sauce of the remaining tomato juice and pour it about the peppers just before serving.

Served With a Cereal.

Make a stuffing of boiled rice and canned tomato and a small minced onion. Season with salt and add a half teaspoonful of curry powder dissolved in a dessertspoonful of water. Fill the peppers and bake, basting with hot water.

Mix a can of chopped mushrooms and a large cupful of breadcrumbs. Cook to a smooth paste, moistening with tomato sauce. Season with salt. Stuff the peppers and bake.

Putting Up Peppers.

Stuffed Pickled Peppers.—Take large bell peppers (the sweet peppers are best) as soon as they are grown, cut out the stem end and get the seed well out. Push the stem into the pod. When all are prepared pour over them hot soda water to keep them green, then boil a few minutes in alum water to make them firm, plunge them into cold water slightly salted and let remain all night.

Make a filling of equal quantities of cabbage, green tomatoes and cucumbers chopped fine, adding a little chopped onion if desired. Cover with water, add one teaspoonful of salt and let stand all night. In the morning take out of the water, drain. Add half a cupful of mustard seed, a tablespoonful each of cloves and cinnamon and a teaspoonful of grated horseradish.

Fill the peppers with this, fit in the stems, fastened in with toothpicks, place in jars and cover with boiling vinegar, sweetened with one pound of sugar to each quart of vinegar. These are nice served with meat.

Stuffed Cats Scare Elders.

A novel method of scaring away birds has been adopted by a Kentish (England) farmer. He has killed a number of cats, had them stuffed and placed them in various attitudes among the branches of the fruit trees in his orchard.

Coming Changes in Hairdressing Styles

HAT brims are growing wider and modistes foretell a vogue for large hats, to begin with the fall season. Large hats and small, simple coiffures do not harmonize, and already the light puff for filling out the coiffure has made its appearance. We have also to consider small hair rolls or pads for supporting the hair, and coiffures are quite generally dressed in waves. These are the wavelets that are breaking upon a new shoreline in hairdressing, speaking figuratively; they are foretelling a rising tide of favor for more display in the management of the hair. The coiffure shown here pictures the hair parted at one side and waved in smooth, regular undulations. There is a short lock at the front arranged in a light curl. Some of the new styles show two very precise ringlets, one on each side of a middle part. For this style the hair is also waved, but more loosely, and the coil is arranged lower on the neck.

Long, light puffs help out in building up a coiffure and a few of them, arranged about a coil, make the new styles easy to accomplish.

The coiffure arranged on top of the head, with the hair combed back from the face is liked by the younger women. Only a few curls about the face relieve the plainness of this style, but a mass of hair piled on top of the head makes a piquant arrangement suited to youthful faces.

Puffs and short curls are becoming to everyone and look as well on grand-mama as on her daughter and daughter's daughter. They are most successful when made separately and pinned on, for they can be easily dressed and placed wherever needed. There is no very good reason why one should not borrow the charm that belongs to them unless a prejudice against wearing separate pieces of hair can be construed as reasonable.

Blanche Yorke, Who Disappeared July 8, Cug Up in Cellar.

Tamworth, Ont., July 30.—The body of Blanche Yorke, mysteriously missing since July 8, was found buried in the cellar of the residence here of Dr. C. K. Robinson.

A warrant for the arrest of Dr. Robinson, charging him with murder, was immediately issued.

The body was covered with three inches of earth, on top of which had been piled many broken boxes. Parts of the body were found in the furnace. Miss Yorke, who was a dressmaker, was a patient of Dr. Robinson at the time of her disappearance.

WOMEN'S WOES

Gettysburg Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, of headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Keeping the kidneys well has spared thousands of women much misery. Read of a remedy for people you know.

Mrs. Annie Fianarty, 311 Washington St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills during the past several years and am willing to tell of my experience for the benefit of other kidney sufferers. I had weak kidneys for a long time and was also subject to headaches and backaches. Doan's Kidney Pills have removed all these troubles. There is no better remedy for the kidneys."

Nobody can Tell when you

Darken Gray, Faded Hair

with Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

Japanese Denied Luxuries.

The most expensive single fruit in the Japanese fruit stores is the natumikan, a species of grapefruit (Citrus decumana), which sells throughout the winter for 7 1/2 cents each. These are not eaten in great quantities by the class of people who make the great fruit-buying population in the United States. The average income of the Japanese family of four is about $150 a year. This sum does not leave much margin for the purchase of luxuries.

Training Outweighs Long Service

There is no better proof of this than the every-day scenes of long service, untrained employees at the beck and call of younger men who occupy the big positions because of their training. It's a case of Training vs. Long Service—with the odds in favor of the trained man.

Get out of the untrained rut. Mark and mail the attached coupon and let the I. C. S., of Scranton, tell how you can qualify for a better position. How you can protect yourself against servitude in your old age. How you can become an expert at your chosen line of work.

That the business of the I. C. S. is to Raise Salaries is shown by the monthly average of 400 letters voluntarily written by students reporting salaries raised and advancement won through I. C. S. help. No necessity for leaving home. No books to buy. Marking the coupon puts you to no expense and places you under no obligation. Mark it NOW.

The Adventures of Kathlyn

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Illustrated by Pictures from the Moving Picture Production of the Zelig Polyscope Co.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Kathlyn Hare, believing her father, Col. Hare, in peril, has summoned her, leaves her home in California to go to him in Allah, India. Umballa, pretender to the throne, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir.

One of the chief characteristics of the East Indian is extravagance. To outvie each other in celebrations of births, weddings, deaths and coronations they beggar themselves. In this the oriental and the occidental have one thing in common. This principle of wealth in it because of its emerald mines and turquoise pits. The durbar brought out princes and princelings from East, South and West, and even three or four wild-eyed amirs from the North. The British government at Calcutta heard vaguely about this fete, but gave it scant attention for the simple fact that it had not been invited to attend. Still it watched the performance covertly. Usually durbars took months of preparation; this one had been called into existence within ten days.

Elephants and camels and bullocks; palanquins, gharis, toogas; cloth of gold and cloth of jewels; color, confusion, maddening noises, and more color. There was very little semblance of order; a rajah preceded a princeling, and so on down. The wailing of reeds and the muttering of kettle drums; music, languorous, haunting, elusive, low minor chords seemingly struck at random, intermingling a droning chant; a thousand streams of incense, crossing and recrossing; and fireworks at night, fireworks which had come all the way across China by caravan—these things Kathlyn saw and heard from her lattice.

The populace viewed all these manifestations quietly. They were perfectly willing to wait. If this white queen proved that she would go about their affairs, leaving her in peace; but they were not willing that she should be a puppet in the hands of Umballa, whom they hated for his cruelty and money leeching ways. O, everything was ripe in the state for murder and loot—and the reaching, holding hand of the British Raj.

As Kathlyn advanced to the canopied dais upon which she was to be crowned, a hand filled with flowers reached out. She turned to see Ahmed.

"Bruce Sahib," she whispered. Ahmed salaamed deeply as she passed on. The impression that she was dreaming again seized her. This could not possibly be real. Her feet did not seem to touch the carpets; she did not seem to breathe; she floated. It was only when the crown was placed upon her head that she realized the reality and the finality of the proceedings.

"Be wise," whispered Umballa, coldly. "If you take off that crown now, neither your gods nor mine could save you from that mob down yonder. Be advised. Rise!"

She obeyed. She wanted to cry out to that sea of bronze faces: "People, I do not want to be your queen. Let me go!" They would not understand. Where was Rao? Where was Bruce? What of the hope that now flickered and died in her heart, like a guttering candle light? There was a small dagger hidden in the folds of her white robe; she could always use that. She heard Umballa speaking in the native tongue. A great shouting followed. The populace surged.

"What have you said to them?" she demanded.

"That her majesty had chosen Durga Ram to be her consort and to him now forthwith she will be wed." He salaamed.

So the mask was off! "Marry you? O, no! Mate with you, a black?" "Black?" he cried, as if a whiplash had struck him across the face.

"God?" mockingly.

"Yes, my God and the God of my fathers!"

To the mutable faces below she looked the queen at that instant. They saw the attitude, but could not interpret it.

"So be it. There are other things besides marriage."

"Yes," she replied proudly; "there is death."

CHAPTER III.

The Two Ordeals.

Umballa was not a coward; he was only ruthless and predatory after the manner of his kind. A thrill of admiration tingled his spine. The women of his race were chattels, lazy and inert, without fire, merely drudges or playthings. Here was one worth conquering, a white flame to be controlled. To bend her without breaking her, that must be his method of procedure. The skin under her chin was as white as the heart of a mangosteen, and the longing to sweep her into his arms was almost irresistible.

A high priest spoke to Kathlyn. "What does he say?" she asked.

"That you must marry me."

"Tell him I refuse!"

Umballa shrugged and repeated her words. Here the Council of Three interposed, warning Kathlyn that she must submit to the law as it read. There was no appeal from it.

"Then I shall appeal to the British Raj."

"How?" asked Umballa, urbanely.

Swiftly she stepped to the front of the platform and extended her arms. It was an appeal. She pointed to Umballa and shook her head. Her arms went out again. A low murmur rippled over the pressing crowd; it grew in volume; and a frown of doubt flitted over Umballa's brow. The soldiers were swaying restlessly. Kathlyn saw this sign and was quick to seize upon its possibilities. She renewed her gesture toward them. It seemed that she must burst forth in their maddening tongue: "I appeal to the chivalry of Allah! . . . Soldiers, you now wear my uniform! Liberate me!" But her tongue was mute; yet her eyes, her face, her arms spoke eloquently enough to the turbulent soldiers. Besides, they welcomed the opportunity to show the populace how strong they were and how little they feared Umballa. At a nod from their leader they came romping up the steps to the dais and surrounded Kathlyn. A roar came from the populace; an elephant trumpeted; the pariah dogs paid so much for the privilege of squeezing the man under him. Mutiny was afoot, rebellion, but it had not yet found a head. The natives wanted a change, something to gossip about during the hot, lazy afternoons, over their hookahs and coffee. To them reform meant change only, not the alleviation of some of their heavy burdens. The talk of freeing slaves was but talk; slaves were lucrative investments; a man would be a fool to free them. An old man, with a skin white like this new queen's and hair like spun wool, dressed in a long black cloak and a broad-brimmed hat, had started the agitation of liberating the slaves. More than that, he carried no idol of his God, never bathed in the ghats, or took flowers to the temples, and seemed always silently communing with the simple iron cross suspended from his neck. But he had died during the last visitation of the plague.

They had wept of their tolerant king, who had died mysteriously; they were now weeping of the council and Umballa; in other words, they knew not what they wanted, being People.

Who was this fair-skinned woman who stood so straight before Umballa's eye? Whence had she come? To be ruled by a woman who appeared to be tongue-tied! Well, there were worse things than a woman who could not talk. Thus they gabbled in the bazaars, round braziers and dung fires. And some talked of the murder. The proud Ramabai had been haled to prison; his banker's gold had not saved him. O, this street rat Umballa generally got what he wanted. Ramabai's wife was one of the beauties of Hind.

Through the narrow, evil smelling streets of the bazaars a man hurried that night, glancing behind frequently to see if by any mischance some one followed. He stopped at the house of Lal Singh, the shoemaker, whom he found drowsing over his water pipe.

"Is it well?" said the newcomer, intoning.

"It is well," answered Lal Singh, dropping the mouthpiece of his pipe. He had spoken mechanically. When he saw who his visitor was his eyes brightened. "Ahmed?"

"Hush!" with a gesture toward the ceiling.

"She is out merrymaking, like the rest of her kind. The old saying: if a man waits, the woman comes to him. I am alone. There is news?"

"There is a journey. Across Hind to Simla."

"The hour has arrived?"

"At least the excuse. Give these to one in authority with the British Raj, whose bread we eat." Ahmed slid across the table a very small scroll.

"The memsahib is my master's daughter. She must be spirited away to safety."

"Ah!" Lal Singh rubbed his fat hands. "So the time nears when we shall view the vulture's neck. Al, it is good! Umballa, the toad, who swells and swells as the days go by. Shiva has guarded him well. The king picks him out of the gutter for a pretty bit of impudence, sends him afar to Umballa, where he learns to speak English, where he learns to wear shoes that button and stiff linen bands round the neck. He has gone on, gone on! The higher up, the harder the fall. "The cellar?"

A Queen in Spite of Herself.

"There are pistols and guns and ammunition and strange little wires by which I make magic fires."

"Batteries?"

"One never knows what may be needed. You have the key?"

"Yes."

"Hare Sahib's daughter. And Hare Sahib?" with twinkling eyes.

"In some dungeon, mayhap. There all avenues seemed closed up."

"Umballa needs money," said Lal Singh, thoughtfully. "But he will not find it," in afterthought.

"Tomorrow?"

"At dawn."

These two men were spiders in that great web of secret service that the British Raj weaves up and down and across Hind, to Persia and Afghanistan, to the borders of the Bear.

Even as Lal Singh picked up his mouthpiece again and Ahmed sallied forth into the bazaars Umballa had brought to him in the army that company of soldiers who had shown such open mutiny, not against the state, but against him.

Gravely he questioned the captain. "Pay our wages, then, heaven born."

"Pay us, for we have seen not so much as betel money since the last big rains."

"Money," mused Umballa, marking down this gallant captain for death when the time came.

"Al, money; bright rupees, or, better still, yellow British gold. Pay us!"

"Let us be frank with each other," said Umballa, smiling to cover the fire in his eyes.

"That is what we desire," replied the captain, with a knowing look at his silent troopers.

"I must buy you."

The captain salaamed.

"But after I have bought you?" ironically.

"Heaven born, our blood is yours to spill where and when you will."

From under the teak table Umballa drew forth two heavy bags of silver coin. These he emptied upon the table dramatically; white, shining metal, sparkling as the candle flames wavered. Umballa arranged the coin in stacks, one of them triple in size.

"Yours, captain," said Umballa, indicating the large stack.

The captain pocketed it, and one by one his troopers passed and helped themselves and fell back along the wall in military alignment, bright eyed and watchful.

"Thanks, heaven born!"

The captain and his troopers filed out. Umballa fingered the empty bags, his brow wrinkled. Cut off a cobra's head and it could only wriggle till sunset. Umballa gave the vanishing captain two weeks. Then he should vanish indeed.

The next morning while the Council and Umballa were in session relative as to what should be done with Kathlyn in the event of her refusal to bend, two soldiers entered, bringing with them a beautiful native young woman, one Pundita, wife of Ramabai, found in murder.

Umballa wiped his betel-stained lips and salaamed mockingly. Not so long ago he had been attentive to this young woman—after her marriage. She had sent him about his business with burning ears and a hot cheek, made so by the contact of her strong young hand. Revenge, great or small, was always sweet to Umballa.

To the slave girl who attended Pundita he said: "Go summon the queen. It is for her to decide what shall be done with this woman."

Through the veil Pundita's eyes sparkled with hatred.

When Kathlyn came in it was at once explained to her that the woman's husband had been taken for murder; by law his wife became the queen's property, to dispose of as she willed. The veil was plucked from Pundita's face. She was ordered to salaam in submission to her queen. Pundita salaamed, but stoutly refused to kneel. They proceeded to force her roughly, when Kathlyn intervened.

"Tell her she is free," said Kathlyn. "Free?" came from the amazed Pundita's lips.

"You speak English?" cried Kathlyn excitedly.

"Yes, majesty."

Kathlyn could have embraced her for the very joy of the knowledge. A woman who could talk English, who could understand, who perhaps could help! Yes, yes; the God of her fathers was good.

Umballa smiled. All this was exactly what he had reason to expect. Seven days of authority; it would amuse him to watch her.

To Cure a Cold.

Coughs and Colds—An ordinary cold can often be checked in the first stages by inducing a good perspiration. A glass of very hot milk drunk after you are in bed, or the juice of a lemon added to a tumbler of boiling water, will often accomplish this. A hot bath to which a little ammonia has been added is another method.

Use for Old Records.

Old talking machine records make very nice table mats for hot dishes. The mats can be made by gluing asbestos on both sides of records and covering with linen or cretonne and binding it with a brass strip with same material sewed into place.

Guaranteed.

What makes that man start laughing when he tells a story? "He always announces that it will be a funny story, doesn't he?" asked Miss Cayerne. "Yes," "Well, I suppose he laughs to show that he has the courage of his convictions."
